ATR VERDICT: CILAOS GLACE arrives here on the back of a heavy fall at Fontwell last month but he appeals as the most likely winner having won impressively at the same track on his penultimate start. The nine-year-old remains open to improvement and he gets the vote ahead of the likes of Star of Rory, who is winless since February 2020, and Dash Full Of Cash, who is very interesting on his chasing bow.

Ben Brody also steps down the class ladder and should make his presence felt, while Getaway Jewel is another respected player.

ATR VERDICT: LEGENDARY RHYTHM showed more than enough on her most recent start here to suggest that she is well capable of getting off the mark over fences. With the step back up in trip expected to suit, she can strike for the first time since last March while fending off the challenge of Sedgefield runner-up Astra Via, who is another that could improve for going up in distance. Brandisova, Leverock Lass and Wildkatze are others to note.

ATR VERDICT: Kopa Kilana ran well to score in a bumper on debut at Musselburgh and has to be of interest on his hurdling bow, but MONTE IGUELDO's greater experience could prove invaluable here. Oliver Greenall's charge took a step forward when second at Bangor last time, despite his saddle slipping two out, and he could continue his progression here. Richard Newland opted to pitch Whizz Kid in at the deepest of deep ends when giving him his hurdling debut in the Tolworth and he could be better for that outing, while there wasn't anything too horrifying about Edgar Allan Poe's hurdling debut and he could build on that.

ATR VERDICT: CHANTING HILL looks well handicapped for this and could get back to winning ways. A winner off this mark at Kelso last season, Nick Alexander's mare seemed to get back to some sort of form when second in a three-runner race over this track and trip last time. Justforjames ran a solid enough race for this over this C&D latest and the veteran is 1lb lower in this, while Brother Pat was not disgraced when third at Market Rasen on Boxing Day and could make an impact off a 1lb lower mark.

ATR VERDICT: Dawn Raider took advantage of a falling mark when winning with a fair bit in hand at Carlisle last time but whether he can follow that up under a 7lb penalty is open to debate. Royal Act is now 1lb lower than when successful at Bangor two starts ago but that's because of a heavy defeat over 2m here last time, while Celma Des Bois scored over 2m4f here on his penultimate start but was well beaten when pulling up at Chepstow last time. Preference, therefore, is for FOR FITZ SAKE, who left his poor previous form behind when stepped up to staying trips at Market Rasen last time. Now 4lb lower than that third-placed effort, Laura Morgan's point-to-point winner could strike off bottom-weight.

ATR VERDICT: SCHALKE travelled really well throughout when winning with some ease at Market Rasen last time and he could score again off just 6lb higher in this. Final Reminder had been in decent form before refusing to take part at Kelso last time, while Lady Bowes appeared to find some form at Haydock last time though all her best recent efforts have come on heavy ground. Wynford, third when tackling this sort of trip at Musselburgh latest, is another to consider.

ATR VERDICT: MARRACUDJA looks a class apart in this. Dan Skelton's charge won in handicap company off a mark of 131 earlier this season and was beaten just a length into third in a hunter chase at Hereford last time. He shaped as though this longer trip would suit there and can get the better of the 120-rated Ffos Las winner Pure Vision in this. The latter was making his second start since 2018 at the Welsh track so is entitled to go well, while Indirocco has been making hay in point-to-points recently so cannot be left out of calculations here.

ATR VERDICT: Benefaktor has yet to win in two starts in hunter chases, but he has a good record between the flags and found only one too good in a Cartmel hunter chase last year, while Rebel Dawn Rising has gone from strength to strength in points this term but his previous attempt in a hunters' chase saw him heavily beaten here, where Barrack Hill was well clear of him in third. SIXTEEN LETTERS gets the vote, though, as he has been in cracking form between the flags of late.

However, he may struggle to hold off the unexposed COLINTON, who made the perfect start for his current yard when scoring under these conditions last month.
